

go/complicity:

As part of The Complicity Project, the SGA Sexual and Relationship Respect Committee is collecting submissions about the ways that we're all complicit in a culture that allows sexual assault on campus to continue occurring. To us, complicity means reinforcing a culture that perpetuates sexual violence, whether through our actions, our inaction, or in our associations. How are you complicit in perpetuating sexual assault? How are the people around you complicit? This form will be open all semester, and we'll be using submissions as part of our ongoing project.

Description of The Complicity Project:

This spring, the SGA Sexual and Relationship Respect Committee is launching The Complicity Project. This project continues our work from #MiddToo last year, aiming to further the conversations around sexual violence at Middlebury. We are focusing on the complicity of our Middlebury community as a whole in perpetuating sexual violence. To us, complicity means reinforcing a culture that perpetuates sexual violence, whether through our actions, our inaction, or in our associations. How are you complicit? Submit your thoughts at go/complicity, and see the website at go/complicityproject. We will put up posters throughout the semester to encourage people to consider their own role in a culture that allows and perpetuates sexual violence, culminating in a library display (4/8-4/15). We will also bring speakers and hold a workshop to begin to address our own role in ending sexual violence at Middlebury.

Additional thoughts/content:

We are also complicit in other forms of oppression that intersect with sexual violence (eg racism, sexism, ableism, transphobia, classism, homophobia, etc)
